NELL BRADLEY

'Woman of the Year'

Nell Bradley, an East Palo Alto woman has been selected as one of the 15 Distinguished Women of the Year in the San Francisco Mid-Peninsula.

Mrs. Bradley, Pacific Telephone business office manager for East Palo Alto, Woodside and Portola Valley will receive a plaque on Thursday, Oct. 3rd at the Annual Awards Luncheon for Distinguished Women at the Ricky's Hyatt House in Palo Alto.

The awards ceremony now in its second year is sponsored jointly by the Girls' Club of the Mid-Peninsula, Pacific Telephone and Lockheed.

The luncheon will honor approximately one hundred outstanding women who have made contributions to education, business the professions, the arts and the community.

The honorees were chosen by local organizations, - accompanies, cities and counties in an area extending from South San Francisco to Sunnyvale.

Fred LaCrosse, television personality and news anchorman for KRON-TV, will be the master of ceremony, with Marjorie Duckrey of Duckrey Associates, Inc. and national president of the Girls' Club of America, as the featured guest speaker.

Another celebrity expected at the function is Mrs. Mae Mays, a social worker who is also the wife of baseball immortal Willie Mays.

Proceeds from the awards luncheon will benefit the programs of the Girls' Club of the Mid-Peninsula, a United Bay Area Crusade sponsored agency which aids 600 girls from the ages of six through fourteen years old in East Palo Alto and East Menlo Park (Belle Haven).

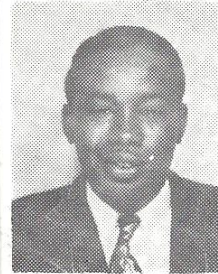

Others to be honored include Mary Gordon, Planning Commission chairwoman for the City of Palo Alto, Christine Joyce Glennon, lunch manager for Ming's Restaurant; Lois Crozier Hogle, founder of Peninsula Conservation Foundation; Mary W. Lewis, Mid-Peninsula Toastmistress
